

"Goodbye, New York," Tomorrow, Saturday, Is My Last Day in New York— I Will Make It a Double-Header by Combining "Dollar Day" with the Closing Out of All "Short Lots"

The whole city has been stirred by my Lockhart Mill-End Sale campaign. Tomorrow, "Dollar Day" and "Short Lot Day" will stand out as a conquest in merchandising that has never been equalled. Even the "wise ones" and the "doubting Thomases" and "knowing ones" have become convinced of the immensity of my business. Tomorrow is my last day, and I shall make it a day of great blessings to my hundreds of thousands of customers who will fly hither and thither throughout this great store, chasing down the "Dollar Day," "Short Lot" bargains.

Don't spend one of tomorrow's precious moments gazing at your own shadows of doubt, for when the sun goes down tomorrow, Saturday night, these advertised opportunities will have dwindled and faded away, and I will be speeding on a fast train for a Western city, where smiling thousands will greet my unusual business next Monday morning.

GREENHUT'S
"THE BIG STORE"
SIXTH AVE., 18TH TO 19TH STREET

Meet me at the Fountain

I must clean the slate before I leave the Greenhut store tomorrow night. The "Mill-End" goods in the show windows and on display inside the store throughout the entire building are a part and parcel of this sale. They must be cleared out tomorrow. If you see anything in the windows or in any part of the store that you want, ask for it and you'll get it. The "Mill-End" sunshine has not been under a cloud for one minute since I landed here. I now want to close this great event in a blaze of glory. In letters of fire I warn every reader that Saturday will be my last day and the biggest day of all. Small lots not advertised I will sell in five, ten and fifteen minute sales, personally supervised on the floor during the day. Come to stay all day.
